Bringing the Pieces Together: A Theory of Change for BHI

Assumptions	Activities	Immediate Outcomes
& Context Mission driven Innovative co- production model Grounded in equity, diversity, inclusion and Indigenous ways of knowing Institutional commitment Secure funding Positive partnership environment Relevant to local, provincial and national priorities	Leadership and Management Governance Policy and guidelines Infrastructure Support Funding programs Capacity building Communication and networking Evaluation, performance measurement and reporting	 interdisciplinary research collaborations are developed Diverse group of researchers and trainees with necessary knowledge and skills to conduct excellent, co- produced science Access to state-of-the-art facilities and infrastructure to accelerate B- H research and collaboration New partnerships are developed and nurtured with health care and other sectors B-H knowledge generated and accessible BHI researchers embrace a broad concept of research excellence 	Intermediate Outcomes BHI enabled new transdisciplinary science Innovative B-H social and clinical interventions developed Evidence-informed model for implementing high- impact, transdisciplinary research programs Greater collaboration and accelerated translation of research findings	 Long Term Outcomes BHI is recognized internationally as a sustainable Centre of Excellence in B-H research ensuring long-term maximum impact Evidenced informed B-H health innovations are implemented in policy, practice, and commercialized Prevention and treatment of B-H conditions is integrated, and contributes to better B-H care and improved B-H health outcomes 	Ultimate Outcome Brain-Heart health for all